

PERSON CENTERED OUTCOMES TRAINING

This interactive training is for people responsible for the development of meaningful outcomes within the framework of person centered thinking and planning.

We define outcomes as achievements of what is most important to the person, in ways that work for them and builds upon their strengths. This fun, interactive training will help you and your organization understand how to leverage person centered outcomes, within the values of person centered planning. You'll also learn best practices on organizing information and how these outcomes can lead to lives that people desire.

Supports vs. Outcomes: These phrases describe similar but different approaches to person centered training. We'll compare, contrast, and help you learn to articulate these to others.

Exploring Desired Outcomes: We'll discuss how to discover and build upon desired outcomes from people we support and how to build those into a person centered plan.

Throughout this transformational training, our skilled trainers constantly focus on hopes and dreams while asking, "What more is possible?"

SPECIFIC TRAINING FOCUS TOPICS

Personal Outcomes: We believe the best way to understand outcomes is to look inward. We start there —be ready to dig into your outcomes.

System Centered: We will review what should be considered supports rather than outcomes. Rather than spending time on "what was", we discover how to move away from systematizing peoples' goals.

5 Valued Experiences: We will examine the 5 Valued Experiences and how outcomes should center around people's experiences and becoming a part of their community.

"Person Centered Outcomes training has helped me not only feel confident in helping the people I support get their goals on paper, but it has also helped improve my skills to increase the quality of the outcome."
